

Connecticut Post | Monday, May 31, 2010

KNOWLEDGE MASTERS

The Knowledge Master Open is a challenging, academic competition in which teams of students compete. The competition attracts more than 3,000 schools and 45,000 participants from the U.S. and several foreign countries. Trumbull's Madison Middle School's Knowledge Master Team came in first in the recent state competition, and placed 30th out of 700 middle schools internationally. Roberta Weiner is the adviser. Students participating included John Brindisi, Steven Costello, Jimmy Donahue, Amine Essaihi, Kyle Foster, Tommy Garzillo, Nate Gibson, Keshav Khazanchi, Maneesh Koneru, Jackson LaBoa, Larissa Mark, Daniel Netting, Sam Nguyen, Nikhil Ramachandran, Iris Rukshin, Maya Rukshin, Anuj Sisodiya, Molly Stewart, Varun Vallabhaneni and Max Wu.